

DJ Pep, you might be the Weakest Link

Fans of the Weakest Link should brace themselves for the forthcoming clash between evil Anne Robinson and Bay Radio's very own DJ Pep.

Bay Radio's most insane presenter has recently filmed an appearance on the show. "I took Anne a big stick of Morecambe rock," jabbered Pep in his own inimitable style.

"They wouldn't let me give it her on screen though - they were probably worried I'd try to hit her with it!"

The disc spinner was supposed to appear on a special DJs show earlier this year, the only local radio presenter to be invited, but a missed train saw him miss out. Pep obviously made quite an impression on the folks at the Beeb though, and when one of them spotted him at the recent Robbie Williams gig another invite to appear on The Weakest Link soon followed.

"They very kindly gave me prime position in the centre", said Pep.

Will DJ Pep be the Weakest Link?

DJ Pep at The Weakest Link studios.

THERE appears to be no escaping zany Bay Radio personality DJ Pep, who tomorrow will go head-to-head with the fearsome Anne Robinson.

The radio presenter and DJ, real name Peter Roberts, will be a contestant on quiz show The Weakest Link on BBC2 at 5pm.

And as the Pepster is not exactly known for his general knowledge skills, The Visitor believes his TV appearance could be short but sweet.